What Is An Environmentalist?

Keith Woodhouse
Northwestern University
Department of History

"Environmentalist" and "environmentalism" are broad and often vague terms that encompass different movements and philosophical positions. This talk will review those movements and positions to try to get a better sense of the diversity amongst them, as well as the political, cultural, and personal implications of the variety that exists under those single labels.

Friday, January 10, 2014
2:00 - 3:30 p.m.
CEE Conference Room A230